

DePaul University Selects SS&C's Zoologic Learning Solutions

Web-based Courses Integrated into Graduate Level Course

WINDSOR, CT - September 23, 2008 - SS&C Technologies, Inc. (www.ssctech.com), a global provider of financial services software and software-enabled services, today announced that DePaul University (www.depaul.edu) has selected SS&C's Zoologic Learning Solutions as its web-based course content provider.

DePaul University's Financial Statement and Security Analysis graduate level course is presented in a blended learning environment incorporating both classroom and web-based training. Ten Zoologic web-based courses provide the required online material that students must complete between classroom sessions meeting every other Saturday for ten weeks. Zoologic course topics include accounting, credit risk, and equity.

"We are thrilled to work with Zoologic as our online course content provider," said Ali Fatemi, Professor and Chairman, Finance Department of DePaul University. "Providing this breadth and depth of information in an intuitive format, blended with our classroom training, allows our graduate students a very positive learning environment to fully grasp how everything comes together."

"Zoologic web-based courses fully complement classroom instruction; blending them into graduate programs provides a much richer learning experience," said Bill Stone, Chairman and CEO, SS&C Technologies, Inc. "Incorporating Zoologic course content into graduate studies allows us to start shaping tomorrow's finance professionals today."
