

Windstream offers web and audio conferencing for small and medium business customers

Effective conferencing solutions provide efficiency and cut expenses

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Windstream (NYSE: WIN) is now offering flat-rate web and audio conferencing for small and medium business customers.

Web and audio conferencing are powerful tools that allow customers to conduct business over large distances at a fraction of travel costs. With this flat-rate, subscription based service, the power of these applications is affordable to small businesses.

With the capability to conduct video conferences and presentations, as well as share desktops and other documents, businesses can conduct more efficient customer meetings. Additionally, they can leverage these services to improve training and communications with remote employees.

"Web and audio conferencing are ideal products for our small business customers that are looking to run their businesses more efficiently," said Peter Tonti, Windstream director of business product marketing. "With our flat-rate pricing plan, our business customers can reduce or eliminate travel costs, potentially saving them thousands of dollars a year."

Bundled pricing for web and audio conferencing is a flat $35 a month.

Web conferencing includes:

- Streamlined user experience
