MGM Resorts International Issues Corporate Responsibility Executive Summary

8/6/2014

Report chronicles the company's gains in Diversity, Philanthropy and Sustainability among communities and employees

LAS VEGAS, Aug. 6, 2014 /PRNewswire/ -- MGM Resorts International (NYSE: MGM) has released its 2013 Corporate Social Responsibility Executive Summary, highlighting the company's continued commitment to diversity, engagement with its communities, and stewardship of environmental resources. Themed "Inspiring Our World", the summary is available for download on the company's CSR website, www.mgmresorts.com/csr.

"We are proud of the strides we have made over the last year in our continued efforts to fully integrate social responsibility throughout all levels of our company's operations," said Jim Murren, Chairman & CEO of MGM Resorts International.

"We strongly believe our CSR efforts make us not only a better company; they also make us a better citizen. We are committed to enhancing and expanding our philanthropy, diversity and sustainability initiatives in ways that help improve our community," continued Murren, a CR Magazine 2013 winner of the Responsible CEO of the Year Award.

From introducing the gaming industry's first formal diversity and inclusion initiative in 2000 to building the world's largest LEED Gold-certified "green" complex at CityCenter, or motivating its employees to donate more than 109,000 volunteer hours last year, CSR is foundational to the company's culture.

Recognized in 2013 by PR News with its Overall CSR Practice Award, the company outlines additional CSR milestones in its report, including:

Diversity & Inclusion

- Approximately 64 percent of the Company's 62,000 employees are minorities. In the management ranks, about 43 percent of employees in the supervisory ranks are women, and 38 percent of employees in the supervisory ranks are minorities.

- Since the creation of its Supplier and Construction Diversity programs in 2001, the Company has spent a cumulative total of more than $3 billion with minority-owned, women-owned, veteran-owned and disadvantaged enterprises, as well as businesses owned by disabled and lesbian, gay, bisexual or transgender (LGBT) individuals.
- In 2013, MGM Resorts earned top accolades for its diversity best practices from national thought leaders, including: DiversityInc Magazine, the Human Rights Campaign Foundation and HispanicBusiness Media

Philanthropy & Community Engagement
