Over her career, Heystee has held various leadership positions including Senior Vice President of Global Automotive Business at Verizon Connect and Executive Vice President of Global Sales and OEM Business at Telogis, which was acquired by Verizon in July 2016, and where she grew revenue with enterprise direct sales to Fortune 500 companies in North and South America, Europe and Australia. Ms. Heystee is qualified to serve as a director of the Company due to her extensive experience in the technology sector and knowledge of market driven strategies.

"Ms. Heystee adds significant business model development experience in the mobility ecosystem," said Pasquale Romano, President and CEO, ChargePoint. "Her extensive experience serving a diverse set of industries, from fleet, utility, transportation and home delivery, parallels the wide range of verticals ChargePoint serves with EV charging solutions. Her time as an executive leader at start-up businesses as well as major, global organizations provides the full-range perspective needed as the electric mobility industry continues to expand. I would also like to thank Neil Suslak for his many contributions during his tenure as a member of ChargePoint's Board, but more importantly recognize his early conviction to the electrification of mobility."

"ChargePoint is an impressive company with a winning business model built on a comprehensive cloud subscription platform and software-defined charging hardware that enables a seamless experience for businesses and drivers," said Susan Heystee. "It is an exciting time to join the company given the tremendous value creation opportunities presented as the world transitions to electric mobility."

Heystee holds a bachelor's degree in mathematics and business from the University of Waterloo and an executive MBA from Harvard Business School.
