Hyve now supporting 4th Gen AMD EPYC processors, based on “Zen 4” architecture, across new product lineup

FREMONT, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--

Hyve Solutions Corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary of TD SYNnex Corporation (NYSE: SNX) and a leading provider of hyperscale digital infrastructures, today announced the availability of systems featuring new 4th Gen AMD EPYC processors, maximizing performance and energy efficiency for joint customers.

“Hyve is working closely with its customers to provide market-leading, cutting-edge solutions,” said Jay Shenoy, VP of Technology. “The Hyve-designed HS9121D motherboard leveraging the 4th Gen AMD EPYC processor is just one example of how Hyve is leveraging the performance, efficiency and security of AMD’s solutions across edge, high density storage and ORV3-rack based systems.”

The 4th Gen AMD EPYC processors provide up to 50% more memory channels than any competitive x86 server CPU, a significant improvement in memory bandwidth. Paired with PCIe® Gen 5 support and the all new SP5 socket, 4th Gen AMD EPYC processors can enable a highly efficient data center for several hyperscale workloads.

“We designed 4th Gen AMD EPYC processors to give our customers exactly what they said they needed, high performance, exceptional energy efficiency and low total cost of ownership,” said Ram Peddibhotla, corporate vice president, EPYC product management, AMD. “With the latest “Zen 4” architecture that incorporates modern security by design, 4th Gen AMD EPYC processors are an outstanding choice for IT professionals looking to optimize their data centers for leadership performance while helping address environmental goals.”
